

Consequences of Falling (A Riverfield Novel) by Glenn Sartori

Book Excerpt:

Ignoring Seiko's gentle touch, Ito continued, "...then the move to Riverfield. Our time together has slowly decreased, and now, today may be our last."

She stiffened, moved slightly away from him. In Japan, she would have continued to service him, ignoring all comments. It was the business; she was a captive. But now with freedom, she reacted. "What are you saying?"

"When the Enlightened Dragon Project concludes, there will be some restructuring of our business, and —"

"That project has stolen time away from us, but now maybe..." she paused for a moment, "...what is the Enlightened Dragon Project? You never have told me. I'd like to know since it came between us."

"It's not important because I'm going back to Japan."

Breaking the momentary silence, "And Connelly is staying here."

"Yes."

"I'll go with you." She jumped off the bed. When her feet hit the floor, her mood changed instantaneously—she realized what she had just said was impossible. "No, I couldn't. It wouldn't look right. It wouldn't fit your image." She was now screaming. "You'd bed me forever as long as your pristine image was retained."

"Seiko." He leaned toward her.

"Don't!" She pushed him back with startling force. "You convinced me to marry Connelly, for you and your business. We would be in the states together, you said. It will be wonderful, you said. Now you're leaving... just like that." She hesitated, taking short, quick breaths. "I don't love Connelly. I don't even like him."

In that instant, she realized all that she'd endured was the consequences for falling for Ito. She knew she had been used, and now the final price—life without Ito.

5 Stars: Riverfield Novel Book Two is finally here and titled Consequences of Falling.

Bradley and Elizabeth survived a whirlwind romance, elopement and great sex, for two people who are as different as day and night and then their daughter Jessica was born.

Tragedy unfolds and life changes direction for Elizabeth. I Quote:

“As the clouds rolled across the sky obscuring the last bit of the evening light, Elizabeth kept watching the lake from her apartment’s deck. She thought of herself as a woman always watching something in motion, which was shifting and changing. She wasn’t in motion, or was she? It made her light-headed to think of this. She yearned for her mind to be clear like the water, to be clear of that day in court. And the occasional woodpecker’s remote tapping and the air rending silence that followed it were only sounds registered in her head. They were meaningless, but that day in court was not.

It seemed her thoughts were determined to wander along that shadowy path, where court arguments laid like exposed roots across the forest floor. It was the day that her life totally fell apart, the day she lost her daughter. It had happened last month.”

How could things go so wrong?

It is October 1989 and Elizabeth Trent finds herself running from her past and the only answer might be revenge. A new counseling job in Riverfield, Missouri at the CYA clinic might be a good start. Would returning to the place of her childhood be the answer or would there be old ghosts?

Falling into the routines that a small town has to offer; Elizabeth immerses herself into her clients and secretly hopes she will bump into an old heart throb Union Miller. The mundane has a way of becoming short lived when secrets threaten to break free.

Murder and mayhem begin on Monday May 7, 1990. Can Elizabeth live with the consequences of her actions? Join the investigation as “The morning fog was as thick and wet as breath on a mirror, dimming the heat lightning in the air. Yellow bolts the color of a cat’s eye forked out above the police station. Inside an oppressive mood had settled over the building. Everyone was feeling frustrated. They needed some sort of concrete lead in order to move.”

Romance, tragedy, abduction, murder and conspiracy engage this well-developed cast of characters that include detective John Turner, Mike Ryan, Anne Turner, Kimberly Young, Peter Benton, Randy Bennett, Connelly Dunnerman, and Seiko Dunnerman. The events that unfold will change Riverfield’s small town forever, for now fear grips the community.

I love this fast-paced novel with lots of suspense and mystery. Author Glenn Sartori uses real life stories as inspiration for this novel. He includes an excerpt from his next Riverfield Novel titled ‘Reflections Of Triplets’.
